TRIBUTE TO A FIREFIGHTER — Captain Tom Oakley (center, displaying cake) was honored recently by firemen and retired members of the Albany department for his years of service. Capt. Oakley went on disability retirement last month, after sustaining major injuries while battling a blaze that gutted Pisco's restaurant in October of 1975. Oakley joined the department in July, 1953 and was promoted to captain in 1971. He and his wife, Betty, reside on Kains Avenue.

UC's new English standards

Reveal clash in view points of high school educators

ALBANY — Conflicting reports concerning the methods Albany High School administrators will adopt to meet the recent UC ruling on English standards continued circulating today, a week after the university's decision was announced. A campus spokesman announced November 30 that the school would no longer accept high school journalism, speech or drama as substitutes for English composition.

Albany High School principal James Walker said the principal's council, composed of department heads, is re-examining the courses that are now referred to as "English," but may not be acceptable to UC. "In all likelihood we will be changing the designation of those courses to be consistent with the university request", he said.

Journalism is no longer considered an English expository class, he said, and the committee is expected to recommend in January on the status of speech and drama.

This is contrary, however, to advice handed down by counselor Ralph Stone in the Nov. 24 issue of the school's student newspaper. Stone advised his students how to get around the new requirements.

When asked how the UC requirements would affect Albany students, Stone is quoted as responding, "Not at all."

He said students will continue to get credit for journalism, speech and drama courses because they will be listed on transcripts only as "English," the article said.

"The only thing students should be careful of is filling out the Cal admission form," Stone is quoted as saying. "When the university asks for courses currently being taken or that you are planning to take, don't confuse the issue by putting in the course title; just put down 'English' and there will be no problems."

Connie Woulf, the faculty adviser to the paper, conformed the quote's accuracy. Stone could not be reached for comment.

Walker dismissed Stone's comments this way: "Mr. Stone is a counselor, he doesn't establish policy."

However, Mrs. Woulf, an English teacher in addition to newspaper adviser, also said no changes in course identification are planned.

Three Richmond Unified School District principals contacted yesterday, said they were ending the practice of identifying journalism, speech and drama courses as English.

"What we are doing is advising our students to take our regular English courses and to take these other courses as electives," said Frank Granucci of De Anza High School in Richmond.

Granucci, who said he endorses the changes because not enough writing is being assigned, said the new UC requirements would have little impact at his school, since "most college-boung students are already taking enough English to satisfy UC's requirements."

At El Cerrito High School, Principal James Nelson said his school is making the changes sought by UC. "Actually, I have never had any quarrel with that stance. I think they are absolutely correct in using that criteria," he said.

Pinole Valley High School will drop the "English designation for oral English, drama, public speaking and journalism, said Principal David Taylor.

The new standards were

Unique UC energy program revealed

BERKELEY — A unique process that converts farm waste products into fuel, synthetics and even food is being developed by scientists in Berkeley.

In a research project directed by Charles Wilke of the University of California's Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory, agricultural waste such as wheat straw, cotton seed waste and corn stalks are converted into sugar, low cost carbohydrates, alcohol and synthetic products.

The project, which is being funded by the Federal Energy Research and Development Administration and the National Science Foundation, employs enzymes as the basic element in the conversion process. In the conversion cycle, cellulose in the agricultural wastes or other raw materials, is converted to glucose, a form of sugar; the sugar is then processed into single cell protein or alcohol. This alcohol can be used directly as a fuel or converted further into various organic chemicals which are presently made from petroleum.

Ethyl alcohol is one of the principal products generated by the system. In some foreseeable future this kind of alcohol could be used to power automobiles. Alcohol, though not as powerful a fuel as gasoline, burns much cleaner. The present drawback, however, is using alcohol as a substitute is the cost. Through waste conversion a gallon of alcohol can be produced for about one dollar exclusive of any raw material cost. Wilke is certain that as waste conversion processing is perfected this figure will be reduced considerably.

Wilke believes that as present fuel sources are depleted society will rely more on the process of waste conversion. He, along with his

H. McGannon new Berkeley postmaster

Berkeley, Albany and Kensington have a new postmaster.

He is Harry H. McGannon, 52, who was installed yesterday as the new Postmaster of the Berkeley Post Office. He will supervise 550 employes and postal service to Berkeley, Albany and Kensington.

McGannon, a veteran of 30 years with the postal service, 17 of them as a postmaster, received his appointment under the Postmaster Selection Program of the U.S. Postal Service.

He replaces Gene Howard, who has been the officer in charge for the last six months while the Postal service selected a new postmaster. Howard will now return to the regional headquarters in San Bruno.

McGannon, who said he plans no changes in the operation, did, however, promise faster service. "That's what we are here for," he said.

Preserving primitive charm of Brooks Isle

How can a solitary islet in San Francisco Bay be opened for public recreation and still retain its precious qualities of remoteness and wild adventure?

This problem will be laid out and ideas requested from the public by the East Bay Regional Park District in planning the development of tiny Brooks Island Regional Preserve, situated only a half-mile off Richmond's Inner Harbor.

Approximately 938,300 people live within 30 minutes' of where boats will take off for the adventurous water journey to the frequently wind-whipped island. This travel zone extends from Martinez to Walnut Creek inland and from Carquinez Bridge to San Leandro, through urban Contra Costa and Alameda counties.

A public hearing on plans for Brooks' future now being proposed by the Park District will be held in the Richmond Main Library Auditorium, Civic Center and MacDonald Avenue, on Friday, December 17, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

For those wishing to go over resource materials before attending the public hearing, full copies of the draft Land Use Development Plan and Environmental Impact Report are

Police chief warns

'Tis the season to be careful

By James R. Simmons
Chief of Police, Albany

Since we are starting the Christmas shopping season we would like to offer a few preventive reminders to try to make the season safe for Albany Citizens and prevent the would-be criminal from having a successful season. Some of the more common areas to be aware of and methods to possible insure against being a victim are as follows:

PURSE SNATCHERS: The purse snatch artist is still about, and he preys on lone female shoppers who walk to and from shopping

Again if you see persons about in your neighborhood that are unknown to you or acting in a manner that would not seem to be acceptable to you, call the police and pass on your observations. A simple description of persons, and vehicle with license numbers would be all that is needed to allow officers to make contact and verify their presence in the area. The officers do not mind checking any and all persons brought to our attention by alert citizens and this has proven valuable in the past to supress crime no matter what form it may be.

It is again emphasized that if you notice anything that may be unusual no matter how small, please call the Albany Police Department at 525-7300 and pass on the information to us.

place. It is suggested that ladies carry a small type purse that can be held close to the body and under the arm. Better yet, carry a wallet or purse small enough to place in a pocket or under a coat or sweater, keeping it out of sight.

When walking along, be aware of persons walking or running toward you or near by, such as across the street facing you. The purse snatcher depends on the element of surprise to run up either from the front or from behind to grab the purse and continue off. Also be alert to individuals driving by at slow speeds. Usually they will drive by and then park and wait while one leaves the car to attack a victim and then run to the waiting car. If you become aware of these or similar circumstances you can attempt to reverse direction, step behind a pole or some object if an attempt is underway or walk to the door

No new clues in Florence Woll murder

ALBANY — A 10-day probe of the murder of Florence Woll has failed to produce additional clues to the identity of her killer, Capt. Mel Boyd, who is heading the investigation team, revealed today.

The 75-year-old woman was "beaten savagely, in an apparent robbery attempt," on Nov. 27. She had gotten off an AC Transit bus, about 10 p.m. and was walking toward her home at 1068 Kains when she was attacked at the corner of Kains and Dartmouth Avenues.

She was beaten and stomped into unconsciousness — "probably by a lone assailant." Her empty purse was found near her. Mrs. Woll died 24 hours later in Herrick Memorial Hospital in Berkeley of head injuries.

"We've located some people who may be witnesses, but we desperately need more citizen help," Boyd said. "We're asking anyone who may have information to contact us at 525-7300.

The killing was the first this year in Albany. Two murders were committed here last year, and both were solved.

TO THE CITIZENS OF ALBANY

It is not the cost of the stationery that was used to announce Councilman Patrick Griffin's wedding, but the FACT IS AND ALWAYS WILL BE THAT HE DID NOT SPEAK THE TRUTH in his rebuttal when he denies he used CITY STATIONERY, CITY LABOR and YOUR TAX DOLLARS TO DO IT.

HE DOES NOT SPEAK THE TRUTH when on August 16, 1976, knowing that two of the Council members would be absent, deliberately absented himself from the Council meeting knowing there would not be a quorum, which is required under the Charter to hold a meeting. MEETING WAS CANCELLED. IF HE LIES ABOUT SMALL THINGS, IS HE ALSO LYING WHEN HE DENIES THE OTHER CHARGES?

TRUTH IS STILL THE IMPORTANT FACTOR.

I ask Councilman Patrick Griffin if on October 2, 1974, he appeared at the State Building in San Francisco, in Room 6000, and before Deputy John Briscoe, voluntarily gave a deposition which was detrimental to the City of Albany? TITLE: CITY OF ALBANY VS. STATE OF CALIFORNIA NO. 428396.

Councilman Patrick Griffin, as a member of the City Council on March 17, 1975, by your acceptance of Resolution 75-40 vote to close the Albany Landfill, and by your action, cause the City to be sued for Millions of Dollars for BREACH OF CONTRACT? (LITIGATION IS STILL PENDING) CITIZENS OF ALBANY DO YOU WANT TRUTH OR LIES???

Five-day stop smoking program to be offered

BERKELEY — A Five-day Stop Smoking program will be offered to the public as a community service of The New Winepress Better Living Center beginning Thursday. Nightly sessions will be held at the center, 2011 Shattuck Ave. beginning at 7 o'clock.

The Five-day Plan is a copyrighted program of the Seventh-day Adventist Church "that has achieved international success over a period of nearly 10 years," according to a center spokesman.

The five sessions include, films, demonstrations and discussions. Lectures will deal primarily with the physiological aspects of smoking. Methods recommended for overcoming the habit are all natural remedies. No drugs are used.

Participants will be instructed in how to relax, how to avoid activities and places conducive to smoking during the withdrawal period, how to exercise and breathe, what to eat and drink and how to develop thought patterns that will aid in breaking the habit.

ies that were not coveted nor found cuddly by the wnups.
It's not just disgruntled grownups that bring in un-ted pets, according to Frances Arnold, Humane Edu-ion Director for the society, a lot of older people who e given pets by well meaning folk to keep the oldsters n being lonely, bring in the gift animals because they alone and like it, or do not feel able to cope with an mal.
To prevent these unhappy occurrences, the society
ers several suggestions. Before giving a child a pet, k with the parents to see if the child will be permitted ep the animal, and that the child, or parent will and accept the responsibility for its care.
If planning to give grandparents or older singles a pet, first if the pet is wanted. It is best, Mrs. Arnold says, to e older people a grown dog, as a puppy may be tripped and also will need more care than an adult dog.
For those who wish to keep the gift of a pet a surprise the recipient and those who are not sure what kind of , or if a kitten would be preferable, the Berkeley Bay Humane Society had gift certificates available.
gift certificate in hand, the recipient may choose his pet from the many animals available at the Adoption ter, 2700 Ninth St., Berkeley.
"When one gives a pet for Christmas, one is giving the pient a gift of the only love that money can buy. Pets make good gifts if one follows the rules for checking to see if the animal will be welcomed and cared for perly," Mrs. Arnold said.
She advises those who receive a pet for Christmas to iliarize themselves with some of the basics of pet care.
example, she points out that puppies and kittens are es, and need lots of sleep, just as human babies need
"Provide a place for your pet to sleep that is warm free of drafts and dampness. Let the animal sleep as as it wants to, and without interruption.
"Do not allow any pet, particularly a baby animal, to mauled, squeezed, or teased.
"Be sure your new pet has its inoculations. Feline leritis (cat distemper) is epidemic this year. It is an borne disease, so just because kitty never goes out, es not mean the cat is safe. This disease is not transissible to humans or to dogs, dogs have their own iety of distemper.
"Many puppies and kittens are allergic to cow's milk, so it is best to feed puppy chow and cat food. Keep all small bones away from your dog, and never feed lamb, turkey, or chicken bones. Check with this society's veterinarian or your private veterinarian for the proper diet for your pet.

"Cats need brushing, and it is best to start when they are kittens, getting them accustomed to the brushing so they will be manageable during the brushing process when they are grown. When your puppy is about four to six months old, (depending on size of dog) consider taking the dog to obedience classes for a more pleasing pet. The society has dog obedience training classes evenings and for those who prefer, Saturday mornings.

"And finally, when choosing a puppy, fit the size of the ultimately grown dog to the size of the house and yard," Mrs. Arnold concluded.

Occupational training for unemployed

ALBANY — The East Bay Skills Center has entered a contract with the Alameda County Training and Employment Board (ACTEB) to provide occupational training for unemployed persons residing in Albany, Alameda, Emeryville and Piedmont.

The Center will be recruiting residents from those four cities who are interested in vocational training while receiving a stipend in the following occupational areas: cable television installer, account clerk, electronics technician, welding, machine shop, engineering and clerical occupation.

To qualify all applicants must reside in either Albany, Alameda, Emeryville or Piedmont.

Applications are being accepted at the East Bay Skills Center, 1100 - 67th St. (at San Pablo Avenue), Oakland, until Dec. 16, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 12 noon on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Housing potential of Albany Hill

ALBANY — Albany Hill's east side has enough space for construction of 325 additional dwelling units, although the slopes are often very steep.

However, the adverse environmental impact could be considerable, according to an interim report submitted to Albany City Council last night by the local Land Use Study Committee.

The committee expects to have its complete report ready by Jan. 11. Chairman is Neil Havlik.

The report's estimate of 325 possible dwelling units on the hill's east side is based upon the allowable density of 35 units per acre in that area, with about 9.3 acres available.

The report said, "Much of the hill within the study area consists of slopes of 50 percent or more. This results in an impossible access situation for much of the area.

"Geologically the hill slopes are quite stable, so that steep slopes are expensive to develop but do not present geologic hazards which are often the case in neighboring cities," the report continued.

The natural areas of Albany Hill contain an unusually rich flora and a representative fauna. The absence of deer has allowed a good reproduction of the oaks. This is not the case in the regional parks and watershed lands.

Development on the east side of Albany Hill could have adverse impact upon the oak woodland and its habitat value, the report said.

The adverse impact could also affect the hill's habitat value, the scenic quality of the hill as seen from the city, the scenic quality to the driver or pedestrian on Taft and Jackson Streets and on the current atmosphere of open space and remoteness, the report continued.

The committee believes that the major uses of the city parks on the hill should be viewing, picnicking, unstructured play, hiking and outdoor education.

"The integrity of the parks for providing these experiences should be protected," the report said.

The committee is planning to develop recommendations for protection of the natural values of the hill parks, protection of the hill as a scenic resource, guidelines for the granting of hill development use permits and possible reduction of allowable density to something, "closer to what is actually possible," the report concluded.

The next committee meeting will be held Dec. 16.

Scouts plan clean-up of Albany Hill

ALBANY— Boy Scouts of Troop 12 are forming a clean-up crew to "tidy up" Albany Hill, and "former Scouts and all public-spirited citizens are invited to join the project."

The crew will launch its operation at the end of Jackson Street at 9 a.m. and end the first-day's work at 3 p.m. Volunteers plan to return at nine Sunday morning to complete the project.

Readers desiring additional information may call 524-3202 before 9 a.m.

Seven-story Yule tree decorated

OAKLAND — A seven-story Christmas tree — believed to be the tallest on the West Coast, and scaled to symbolize an entire city's holiday spirit — rose on Oakland's waterfront this week at Jack London Square.

The towering white fir from the slopes of the Cascade Range near Burney, in Shasta County, was hoisted into place by a 30-ton mobile crane and a crew of 10 at the foot of Broadway.

Once erect, the giant Christmas fir was dressed with 1,200 multicolored lights.

Soviets name a lake for Jack London

GLEN ELLEN — Jack London, American proletarian novelist who lived the last quarter of his meteoric life in this picturesque California town, has been granted another honor in the centennial year of his birth.

The Soviet government has named a "beautiful lake" on Chukchi Peninsula, across the Bering Strait from Alaska, Jack London Lake, it was announced in Moscow by Tass, the official Soviet news agency.

London was born of "humble parents" in San Francisco in 1876. He died only 40 years later on his ranch at Glen Ellen. Today it is a state park, the target of many pilgrims from foreign lands, where London remains the most widely reprinted American writer.

Tass said the lake was named at the suggestion of Soviet explorers, evidently Jack London fans like many of their countrymen, including Lenin, whose last days reportedly were spent listening to the American's tales of the Yukon.

The Redwood Empire Association says it considers the naming particularly appropriate, since London won his first fame writing of his experiences in the Arctic, neighbor region to Siberia's Chukchi.

Some 130 attending the Albany Lions Club annual football banquet held recently in the El Cerrito Eagle's Hall paid tribute to the team that established a 20-year record under it's new coach, Phil Wanlin.

Singled out for special honors were Andrei Wallace, named the most valuable player; Tom McDonald, most valuable defensive lineman; Gregg Westphal, most valuable back; Curt Heffernon, most valuable offensive lineman; and John Lutz, "most inspirational player". The trophies were presented by Coach Wanlin on behalf of the Lions Club.

All-League plaques went to Bob Flynn, Murray Hoyle, Kurt Heffernon, Greg Westphal, Andrei Wallace, Mike Van Pelt and Tom McDonald, presented by the Solano Avenue Merchants' Association.

Program Chairman was Bill Potts, who introduced the principal speaker, Vince Maiorana, Contra Costa College football coach.

Christmas spirit in Albany

ALBANY — The Christmas spirit is alive in Albany, where $862.35 in cash and pledges were raised in only a few days to send two Middle School boys to St. Louis, Mo.

It was feared that the boys, Doran McGee and Gavin Jones, would not be able to compete in the national AAU-sponsored cross-country track competition, although they had qualified by performing well in a Fresno meet.

Bud Rooney, city recreation and park superintendent, last week pleaded for the needed $1,100 before the city council. But it appeared that the council was reluctant to pay all.

Rooney and others then spread the word and $812.35 in cash and pledges was raised, leaving them only $237.65 short.

The council last night appropriated $300 for the cause, with any unneeded funds to be returned to the city. This covers expenses of the two boys and an adult accompanying them.

Liniment League opens play

ALBANY — Four teams tipped off in the Albany Park and Recreation Department's Annual Men's Liniment Basketball League last Thursday night at the Albany High School gym.

In the season's lid-lifter, the Winners topped the Champs, 43-34. Gary Parslay paced the victory with 17 points while John Bartolo netted 14 in a losing cause.

Jiminez bowls 1839 in 'Mini-Endurance'

ALBANY — A roaring finish that produced games of 238-245-259 enabled Pedro Jimenez to win fisrt place and $500 in the Mini Endurance at Albany Bowl with an aggregate total of 1839, a scant 18 sticks ahead of second place Dave Wickman.

After a 178 game to start, Jimenez was better than 200 the rest of the way and his 1786 scratch total gave him an average of 223 over the eight game route. He had the benefit of 53 pins handicap.

Earning $400 for second, Wichman included counts of 241 and 247 in his 1731-90-1821 figure. Randy Felix was third for $300 on 1780-21-1801, and Ray Felix fourth for $250 at 1715-85-1800.

Randy Felix also performed brilliantly in the 915 Major League where his 228-226-201 for 655 topped the scoring. Unfortunately, his Merry Max mates didn't give him enough help to prevent a 17-8 defeat by McCue Printing, which featured balanced scoring, topped by Stew Schroeder's 581 and Joe Chaney's 564.

Harold Jackson, whose 264 game and 646 series were his best of the season, pressed Felix for league honors and led O & R Vending 17-8 over Nevada Tahoe Tours. Joe Alee had 621, Cliff Brown 600 for the losers.

While their closest pursuers were all suffering setbacks, Oaks Card Club increased their first place margin by downing the Curtis Cowboys 15 to 10 behind Steve Brewer's 580 and Willie Richey's 570.

Roque Layson's 596 helped Solano Club best Associated Coin Amusements 17-8, and Diablo Bowling Supply moved up to fourth place after an 18-7 win over Paco's Vaqueros. Mark Valente had 620 and Lorenzo Lockhart 602 for Diablo, enough to offset Al Ochoa's 623 for the Vaqueros.

Margaret Short's 264 game and 623 series, both league highs for the season, got sold backing from Cynthia LeBlanc's 593 as Murder, Inc. dumped ACA 15 to 7. Terry Furuya had 558 for Associated.

Emulate Productions moved up to second place on a 16 to 6 win over O & R Vending, but Lu Strelecky's team, 13½ to 8½ losers to Riblett's Backhoe Service, was able to maintain a 5-point first place margin.

Elsewhere in the Majoretes, Sharlen Keunedy posted 569, Marge Hall 554, Priscilla Banks 544, Jess Balcombe 549, Helen Olsen 535.

Ray Stewart fired 602 series and Carl Bingham 560 as Markley Homes moved up in the Tri City Men's loop with 3-0 win over Alley Cats.

Other league leaders included Bill Callaway, Morrison Red, 612; Lonnie Coleman, Nite Owls, 603; Eddie Childress, Pacific Stereo, 585; Patty Pantier, Albany Travelers, 539; Mike Stamps and Dewey Balcombe, both 569 for Friday Classic.

Summaries also are avilable at those libraries nd will be mailed on reuest to the Park District, 500 Skyline Boulevard,
Oakland 94619, phone 531-

EBRPD's plans have een drawn by Park Planers Barbara Kent and ren Helms Parsons and esource Analyst Neil Hav-k of the Planning and De-gn Department; Walter Knight, Zone Manager of EBRPD facilities in west-rn Contra Costa; Water anagement Specialist obert Nazum and Ronald Russo, Resident
aturalist of the Environental Education Center in olden Regional Park.
Working from the basic remise that Brooks was lassified a preserve by EBRPD Directors and ence should be kept essen-ially in its natural state, the anners are proposing that ccess should be by reser-ation only and limited to 40 eople at one time.
A small boat would ply the ay from a staging area in Richmond or Berkeley. The ip over would be consiered a part of the parkland xperience.
Brooks is only 45 acres of land, with a 165-foot hill, and its most valued resources — on top of its aura of remoteness in the midst of the heavily-populated urban Bay Area — are shell mounds and burial sites revealing occupancy by native Americans going back at least 2,000 years; native grasses and flowers, and sanctuary for birds.

"District guides would be available to conduct an interpretive tour of the shell mounds and natural settings," the EBRPD proposal sets fourth.

"In order to insure security and regulate use, either a caretaker residence would remain or a combination of security measures and increases Public Safety patrol provided."

After the Park District purchased the island for $625,000 in 1968, resident security has been provided by the private gun club which has leased Brooks for raising and hunting pheasants. In the past, it was a target for vandals and arsonists.

While closed to the general public, it has been visited, by arrangement with EBRPD, by citizen groups studying the unique natural and cultural resources and by university/college groups for research projects and special studies.

Projecting plans for general use, EBRPD proposes minimal services facilities, principally around the docking area, and a small rest area where 46 years of quarrying left major gashes on the Bayward flank.

An earlier resource analysis by EBRPD Planning and Design staff (which was the subject of a public hearing in Richmond in January) came to this abrupt conclusion: "Perhaps the most significant feature of Brooks Island is the fact that it is still there."

Its grasp on survival has withstood determined movements for industrial and commercial use over the past century, from a railroad freight terminal to a heliport.

After the Indians left, perhaps as late as the 1840's, and before the quarrying began, the islet was used for cattle and sheep grazing, orchards, viviculture and off-shore oyster cultivation.

It was designated Isla de Carmen in the first nautical survey of San Francisco Bay in 1775 and later was known as Sheep Island.

'TIS THE SEASON

a resident and ask that olice be called. Try and ote car color and indi-idual description if possie.

For residents in the righton Street area near e plaza it is asked that you e alert for cars driving bout with no apparent eason other than they may e looking for a victim. If nusual activity of this type noted, either persons walking that are known in area or driving about, call the police department and make your observations known.

SHOPPERS: When putting articles in the car, place them in the trunk to eliminate the opportunity of theft. If unable to do this, place them on the rear floor and cover with something to keep them out of view. When unloading from your car in front of your home do not leave trunk or doors standing open while out of your view. If someone is not standing by the vehicle then lock or close the doors if articles still are in vehicle. It only takes a few seconds to grab articles and run. When unloading, and someone is noted to be loitering about, call the police.

BURGLARIES: Be aware of individuals going from door to door with no apparent business, or asking for names of persons that are not known to homeowner. If persons are noted going from door to door, and when finding no one home wander around to the back, call the police. Individuals found in back yards claiming to be looking for something and they are not known to the home owner should be reported to the police. Usually, when confronted, the intruder excuses his presence with reasons that may sound reasonable but in fact are a cover-up to allow him to depart.

SCHOOLS

adopted in hopes of curbing the tide of faltering English writing skills of the state's graduating high school seniors.

"They stink," said Berkeley High School principal Thomas Parker of UC's new admission requirements.

Parker said he had not received any letter from the university advising him of the new requirements. But he added it didn't matter, since he had no intention of changing those courses designated as "English."

"Cal knows our students do well. I'm not going to apologize for test scores from any of our students," he said, adding, "It's all a game.

"I read the New York Times and the Wall Street Journal and the Chronicle, and there is no reason to believe that those writers have a background in expository writing.

"What I am really concerned about is whether kids can read something, analyze it and come out with some kind of decision or value choice.

UC ENERGY PLAN

research colleagues, Gerald Cysewski, Ren Der Yang and Urs von Stockar, feels that waste conversion points the way to the future.

"When fossil fuel, petroleum and other forms of energy are exhaused — and all present indications are that they will be — other forms of energy will have to be sought," says Wilke. "Right now everyone's looking at solar energy and wind power. Eventually people will be turning to ethyl alcohol as a product of waste conversion."

He adds that he was recently in Brazil, a country that is now committed to shifting its economy from petroleum to an alcohol-based economy. He notes that Brazil was particularly hard hit by the recent international fuel crisis. "I think it's an ambitious project. It will be a formidable task to remove the Brazilian economy suddenly off a petroleum base, one which will require substantial capital and technically capable manpower."

Wilke had been using paper waste as a source of glucose, but now his target is the enormous amounts of waste produced in farming. "Just think of it," says Wilke. "With every pound of wheat that's used to make bread there is a waste factor of 1.4 poundss of material. It would be good to be able to use the whole plant instead of just the wheat."

Wilke's main objective is finding ways of reducing costs. He also seeks to recover more of the usable enzyme that goes into cellulose conversion. He hopes to build a mini-plant in the near future; one that integrates completely the various steps in the conversion cycle. After that perhaps a large pilot plant could be built, he adds. His research is being watched closely by the chemical industry and automobile manufacturers who feel that corn stalks and wheat hay may very well contain a partial answer to an energy future.

'After School Program' tours

ALBANY — A bike excursion to Berkeley Marina was on the agenda for the Cornell After School children recently. "Ice Skating to Berkeley Iceland" will be the excursion for boys and girls in the After School Program for the month of December.

A Santa Claus visit to El Cerrito Plaza will also take place during December for After School participants. Children may sign up with directors Chris Senne and Jay Prosper for activity with the Cornell After School Program.

Night traffic court

Night traffic court will come to Berkeley-Albany Municipal Court beginning Dec. 15 as an experimental program, announced Judges Mario H. Barsotti, George Brunn, James R. Holmstrom and Wilmont Sweeney.

Initially, night sessions will be held on Wednesdays at 5 p.m. and will only handle non-parking traffic matters such as arraignments, pleas, trial date settings an sentences.

The only trials conducted at this stage will be those by "Declaration," whereby a defendant has the option of waiving the citing officer's appearance if he submits written sworn testimony and testifies personally.

No parking tickets or traffic warrant matters will be handled at this stage.

After some experience the court will decide whether to expand the night session content.

Court administrator Charles E. McCain stressed that the court encourages input from the public, which will be considered by the court in deciding whether to make the program permanent and, if so, in what form.

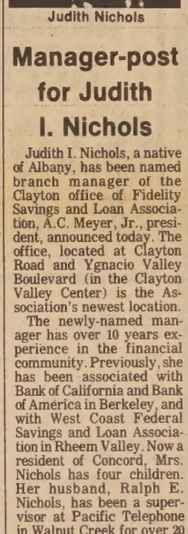

McCain noted that night court has to be paid for by all people with moving violations. Fines on all such tickets, whether or not they are heard in the evening, must be increased by fifty cents under State law once night court is set up.

The law is designed to assure that the county is reimbursed for the costs of the extra court sessions.

"The public should recognize that night court involves a trade-off," McCain said. "We welcome public comment as to whether the trade-off is worthwhile. We also want comment on the best time."

The public is invited to send their reactions to the night court sessions to the Courthouse, 2120 Grove Street, Rm. 108, Berkeley, California 94704.

Further information on evening sessions is available by calling 644-6975.

BASE will bypass '76 dividend

ALBANY — Bay Area Sports Enterprises (BASE) announced this week that it would not pay a 1976 dividend to its shareholders.

Melville Marx, president of BASE, parent company of the Pacific and Tanforan racing associations, said the decision to bypass the dividend payment this year was made at a recent meeting of the directors of BASE.

"This decision was made in accordance with the statement of intention contained in the prospectus for the Area Sports Enterprises 10% subordinated debentures," said Marx. "The possibility of bypassing the 1976 dividend also was mentioned at the 1976 annual meeting of the shareholders of BASE when issuance of the debentures was authorized."

CRAFTSMAN DISPLAYS WARES AT KPFA'S FIFTH ANNUAL CRAFTS FAIR

Radio Station KPFA sets annual Yule Crafts Fair

BERKELEY — KPFA, nation's oldest listener-sponsored radio station, will holding its sixth annual Christmas Crafts Fair on weekends of December 11, and 18-19. As in past years, it will be held in the Student Union Building at U.C. Campus in Berkeley. Doors will be open from 10 until 6, and KPFA is asking for a donation of 50 cents. Children are free. There will be two floors of crafts displays — over 200 different craftsmen each weekend, in addition to catering by the Berkeley Juice Bar Collective and entertainment by the Bay City Reds, progressive jugglers and comedians. There will also be a raffle.

"Among the crafts featured are children's handmade toys, t-shirts (silkscreened, batiked and airbrushed), puppets, pottery, different kinds of clothing, jewelry, furniture, leather goods, stained glass items, musical instruments, pillows and a wide assortment of the different, the bizarre, the unusual and the beautiful," a KPFA official said today.

Some of the more interesting items in the fair are wind chimes, crocheted woolies, sachets, handpainted egg shells and rocks, and various holiday ornaments. One booth will feature Cloisonne enamels, another will show garlic bags, and yet another will exhibit calligraphy.

"The fair affords an excellent opportunity to choose from handcrafted items for this year's holiday shopping. It promises to be both vibrant and exciting, and the browsing should be as much fun as the buying.

"In addition, supporting the crafts fair will be helping KPFA, a truly unique community radio station. Affiliated wiith the Pacifica system, KPFA is supported solely by listener contributions and fund-raising efforts. Its fare is eclectic, ranging musically from Bach to Reggae to the more exotic musical types.

"Because KPFA is community supported, it can offer News and Public Affairs shows that can step on toes without worrying about financial reprisals. It is truly an alternative station," he concluded.

Thank You

First Baptist Church

Sunday at the 11 a.m. service the message "The Waiting World" will be delivered by Pastor Larry Campbell. Special Christmas music will be sung by the Chancel Choir under the Direction of Mrs. LaVaughan Hill. Nursery Care will be provided for small children during the service.

In the evening the annual Family Christmas Party will be held from 6 to 8. There will be several decoration projects and the church tree will be decorated. Carols will be sung and Christmas refreshments will be enjoyed by all ages.

Sunday School Classes meet at 9:30 a.m. every Sunday morning. Mrs. Maxine Garnier is the newly elected Superintendant of the Sunday School.

Wednesday evening at 7 p.m. is the Mid-Week Hour of Prayer and Bible Study. This week is the final study of the Book of Micah.

The ladies of the First Baptist Church are inviting residents of the area to attend a Christmas Tea Thursday at 1 p.m. in the church social hall at Solano and Pomona avenues. A special program will be staged by Frances Nottingham, Dorothy Litzaw and Nell Curran, and a freewill offering will be taken to benefit the church organizations, according to Ardell Williams.

St. Albans Church

The Rev. Warren Debenham, rector, will be the celebrant of Holy Communion at the regular Wednesday service at 11:30 this morning. The vestry will meet at 7:30 this evening.

A Quiet Day has been scheduled for Saturday. The program will begin with Holy Communion at 10 a.m., followed by talks and readings by a Franciscan monk, and by periods for silent prayer and meditation. All are welcome to come and bring a sack lunch.

On Sunday, as a way of "winding up" the Bicentennial Year, the Prayer Book service will be that used shortly after the American Revolution; it is from the first American Prayer Book, of 1789, which is quite similar to the one now in use, having only a few modifications. Father Debenham will preach, and will be assisted by the Rev. Francis Symons, deacon, and Nabeel Jacob, lay reader.

Harry Stadum will read the Old Testament lesson; Brad Allen is the acolyte for the 8 o'clock service, and Eddie Collins and Renea Davies will serve at the 10 o'clock service. The Senior Choir will sing the offertory anthem. Ed Collins and Earl Rogers will usher. A coffee hour in the parish hall will follow the 10 o'clock service. The adult discussion group will meet at 9 a.m. in the Stauffer Room.

St. Alban's Episcopal Church is at 1501 Washington Avenue.

The Reading Room will be open from 2 to 4 p.m. Tuesday, December 14. The Church is at 1358 Marin Avenue.

This chorus will be accompanied by an orchestra of twenty-five musicians made possible in part by a grant from the Music Performance Trust Fund of the Musician's Union, A.F.M., Local No. 6. The professional musicians will be supplemented by instrumentalists from the Prometheus Symphony Orchestra.

The soloists are EVELEAN HEBRARD, soprano; MARIAN CORNISH, contralto; RALPH PETERSON, tenor, and JOHN BEAUCHAMP, bass. NEWTON PASHLEY will be the conductor. ROYALEE SCHERTLE will be at the great organ.

The public is invited to attend. There will be no admission charge. You will, however, be given an opportunity to contribute to the Music Projects Fund which helps to defray the costs of these and other like productions at First Church.

Albany Church of the Nazarene
